Bryan in Kentucky.

There is something wonderful about the tremendous outpouring of the people who go out to hear Mr. Bryan. When he was the nominee of a great party, in fact of three political parties, representing in the aggregate more than six-and-a-half million voters, it was to be expected that great crowds, through party feeling and campaign enthusiasm, would turn out to greet and cheer their chosen leader, but now that he is merely a private citizen, not nominated to represent anyone but himself, not thousands but armies of people everywhere go out to hear him, and with apparently as much enthusiasm as in the hot days of the great campaign when he was their accredited nominee. Finally, when a general leads his army to defeat, as did Mr. Bryan, he is relegated, sometimes in humiliation and disgrace, to the position of a private citizen, but the reverse is true in the case of Mr. Bryan. He goes to hear him, and their enthusiasm does not seem to have diminished. At Nashville on Saturday, 30,000 at Louisville 10,000, at Lebanon 20,000, and so on through the list of his appointments. And more remarkable still, those who opposed him as yet, as the accredited and chosen great party leader, are as intense and furious now against Bryan the citizen orator as they were against Bryan the nominee.

Why is all this? True, he is universally conceded to be one of the finest orators the world has ever produced, but would oratory alone count for so long a period and over such a breadth of country, to draw such tremendous crowds, north, south, east and west? Surely not. Mere oratory would not count for so long a period and over such a breadth of country, to draw such tremendous crowds, north, south, east and west? Surely not. Mere oratory would not count for so long a period and over such a breadth of country, to draw such tremendous crowds, north, south, east and west? Surely not.

WORSER THAN TATE'S DEFEAT.

One Year of Republican Rule in Kentucky Works a Loss to the State of $97,336.26.

Gumshoe Hunter's Political Scheme was Paid with the Pensionary Funds.

"OUT OF THINE OWN MOUTH ART THOU CONDEMNED."

IF THIS IS REFORM, GIVE THE PEOPLE A QUICK CHANGE.

The Frankfort Capital (Rep.) says: "The State of Kentucky in four years has lost on the Frankfort Capital $97,336.26, nearly as much as the State of Kentucky has lost on the Frankfort Capital."

This ought to arouse the sinking fund commissioners to the gravity of the situation. Under the act of March 12, 1893, the sinking fund commissioners are to be paid for the services they perform in the management of the sinking fund. The act provides that the sinking fund commissioners are to be paid for the services they perform in the management of the sinking fund.

The commissioners have stated that under their contract with the State they are guaranteed $25,000 per year for the services they perform in the management of the sinking fund. The act provides that the sinking fund commissioners are to be paid for the services they perform in the management of the sinking fund.

FUNNY THINGS IN POLITICS.

The Courier-Journal indulges in a double-headed bold and thunders editorial on Saturday last, announcing that the country was the terrible precipice of a reign of terror equal to the French revolution of a century ago; that Alford is the Robespierre.

At the same time, the Courier-Journal, in the face of the fact that McKinley has been elected, the then predicted course restored, properly measurable in progress, free silver as a means of restoring the country to the result of the presidential election, Alford waiting on the ground.

The other season is with us as a season.

The farmers have put in splendid time sowing wheat since the rains.

According to advance report of rain, a woman's hat will not be as straight this winter unless it is on exact.

Mr. O. King, Sr., a well-known old citizen of Madison county, Mo., opposite Hickman, died Tuesday, and was buried Wednesday.

Rainfall has been general throughout the Mississippi Valley, and in all the Southern States the outlook of the long dry spell is broken.

And short, a widow aged 85, and a leading farmer, residing fifteen miles northwest of Mayfield, was found swinging to a limb, over a creek bank Sunday afternoon, by his sister, who was in search of him. He body was badly compromised, indicating that he had been there many days.

Some has entered the home of our worthy Baptist pastor, Rev. T. C. M.

hison, in the death of his infant son,

Thomas Arthur. He died of measles, one week yesterday morning. He was a bright, promising little fellow, and his death a grievous shock to his loving parents. May the Master's comfort and consolation go to them. "Suffice it little children to come into me, for of such is the Kingdom of Heaven."

We learn that Mr. B. D. Fadden, son of Brooksville, Fla., was married, last 4th to Miss Mary E. Wooten, of Lexington, and was well known in the city.

Mr. J. C. Henson, wife of Harmon

H. Green, died, at Dr. Douglas' infirmary,

Nashville, Monday morning last. Mrs.

Green had been an invalid several years and had been carried to Nashville for treatment, and was taken to the infirmary for operation, which it was hoped, would save her life, but it was not to be so, and she died, Monday morning. Her remains were brought home and interred Tuesday morning, in city cemetery. She leaves a family consisting of several children, and many relatives to mourn her loss. We would express words of sympathy to the dear family if we only knew how. Every prayer of our nature goes out to them.

—Mrs. B. B. Lott, mother of Mr. R.

M. Lott, died, at the Douglas Infirmary,

Nashville, Monday morning, after long continued illness. Her relatives had carried her to Nashville, where she spent the summer, and where it was hoped the bracing air, pure water, and careful nursing would restore her. But all in vain. Her illness over lived in Hickman, more generally known, or more recently by her friends, as a character unique, sincere, perfectly calm, pure and honest. She lived in an atmosphere of piety, and her pure

Christianity which linked her soul in communion with Master, which her thoughts to the All Good, and her daily life was one of pure, regular and kindness. Our heart bleeds over the death of this good woman, and our very dear friend. Angels have closed her eyes and she is resting in the arms of the from the sad scene. God bless her memory.
